The actor's castle is his home

From the street, Claude Earl Jones' San Antonio Heights home looks like the others on his block, which is just how he likes it.

But behind the seemingly normal facade of his home, it rises to a single story 25 feet tall with a hanging room, sculpture furniture and a firepole.

"I'm not an engineer, I'm not a construction manager," the actor-director said. But nevertheless, he has managed to concoct an unusual house that works for he and his wife, Nancy. All but one of their five children have moved out.

Jones, who did much of the design of his home, opted for the low-key approach from the front for two reasons. First, like many San Antonio Heights residents, he treasures his privacy. And secondly, in building his home to get the most strategic view of the mountains possible, he has tried hard not to obstruct the view of his neighbors.

But to the back of the small house he bought 14 years ago, he has added a massive addition that rises to the legal limits of height. He had a little trouble at first convincing Upland builder George Hostetler of the feasibility of his wishes.

"When I told George I wanted high ceilings, he said, 'No problem — 12 feet.' I said, 'no, you don't understand, I want 25 feet,'" Jones said, laughing.

Jones got his 25 feet and more. The room is as broad as it is tall. With cedar walls, a white pine ceiling, Douglas fir beams and ash and oak cabinets and shelves, the room is a combination kitchen, dining room, living room and bar.

"I wanted the communal spaces to be wide open and inviting," he explained. "Where other people would put a wall, I'd put steps."

Indeed, the different "spaces" are on slightly different levels, separated by steps, but "flowing" into one another, much like the sets he has designed for his plays, he said.

Jones is a veteran Hollywood actor who has appeared in numerous television shows and movies, as well as feature films. His varied career has also included Shakespearean theater — as both an actor and a director. It is the Shakespearean sets that inspired him to create the high-beamed, wide-open look.

Other elements from the works of the bard weaved into Jones' home include a freestanding stone fireplace inspired by a production of Macbeth and a huge wood and animal-fur chair and footstool originally made for Jones when he played the character of Falstaff in "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Jones had the chair, which now assumes a dominant place in the room, made from burlwood in Oregon especially for the production held at Cal State-Los Angeles.

Other remnants from past productions let a visitor know the owner's profession: a hitching post from the play "Inherit the Wind," a clapboard from the movie "Dark Night of the Scarecrow," framed pictures of himself in various productions and a plaque he made himself of his son, John Henry Jones, and his band, "The Unforgiven."

Stained glass windows in two of his doorways remind Jones of his beginnings. A migrant field worker graces a window on the doorway leading from the big room out to the back yard.

"I was an Okie kid out of the dust bowl of Oklahoma and 'The Grapes of Wrath' is my life story for my first 11 years," he said.

Another window on the door leading from his front hallway to a courtyard depicts the comedy and tragedy masks, representing his roots in the stage.

But Jones has not limited the design of his home to memories. Quite a bit of his furnishings look like they belong in the modern art section of a museum.

"Almost all the the furniture in the house, where it was possible, is a piece of sculpture," Jones said.

By the fireplace are a coffee table and matching light fixture hanging from the ceiling, both designed by Claremont artist Michael Hill. They are both inlaid with chunks of stained glass. When Jones flicks a light switch a gentle colored glow fills his living room space.

A kitchen space adjacent to the living room sports a counter with barstools surrounding the cooking area. Jones, who describes himself as an amateur chef, prefers to have his company close by while he is cooking their meal.

"When you have guests, usually you're in the kitchen and they're in the living room. Well, I didn't like it that way," he said, confiding "I stole the idea directly from places like Benihana."

Hanging from the ceiling in the middle of this monstrous room is his office.

That's right — hanging.

"I have an office in mid-air," he explained, climbing up the wrought iron spiral staircase leading to his lofty perch, which comes complete with a computer. From the top he has a view of the rest of the room, as well as a view of the mountains from his window.

"It's removed enough from the house that I can do my work, yet I still have contact and control of it," he said. For a fast exit from his work, Jones had a firepole installed in the middle of the staircase. However, his high-school-aged son is the one who uses it now.

"I used to before I got out of shape," he said. □

Gwentyth Manifold, left, and Eileen Burkan are busy talking now instead of writing.

Pen pals for 20 years, duo finally meet face-to-face

By Suzanne Sproul

Eileen Burkan and Gwentyth Manifold have shared the good times and the bad for 20 years.

Burkan of Alta Loma and Manifold of Brisbane, Australia, have been pen pals. And now after sharing each other's thoughts and feelings without ever seeing each other, the two have finally met.

Burkan extended an invitation to Manifold several years ago, but the Australian woman was busy raising her two daughters. When the girls grew up, Manifold said she began thinking about her first trip to the United States and meeting Burkan after all these years.

"Eileen wrote and invited me years ago. She said if I could find my fare, she'd take care of me," Manifold said. "Well when the girls got older I decided to come. I started planning this trip about three years ago."

Burkan said she first became interested in having a pen pal when her family lived in New Jersey. Her son brought home literature from school about a pen pal program.

"The literature said if you paid a dollar you would become a part of the program. So I put in $2, one for my son and one for me," Burkan said.

"The people involved with the program told me it was a children's program, but I told them I was still interested."

Alta Loma mom, triplets chosen peace ambassadors to Russia

By Marianne Aiken

Being a peace ambassador is an expensive proposition.

That's what Beverly Abila of Alta Loma found out when she and her 11-year-old identical triplet daughters were chosen to represent the U.S. as peace ambassadors to Russia — at a cost of $2,500 each.

Abila is re-mortgaging her house to pay for the trip, but would like to find sponsors to help foot the $10,000 bill she and her daughters will run up when they visit the Soviet Union as part of the "Children as Teachers of Peace" program, May 4-18.

Her daughters, Becky, Stacy and Jenny, are sixth-graders at Carnelian Elementary School. In addition to the travel expenses, Abila will lose two weeks' pay from her job as a math instructor at Rio Hondo College in Whittier when she makes the trip.

She will be one of 20 adult counselors to the group of 40 child peace ambassadors.

"Mostly the reason I was chosen was because of what I do," she said. "Beyond that, they need people who will fit into the peace atmosphere."

She was inspired to apply for the trip in February, after meeting author Gerald Jampolski who established "Children as Teachers of Peace."

Jampolski is the author of "Love is Letting Go of Fear," and "Teach Only Love."

"I went on retreat last year and was given one of his books,"

Abila said. "Then I saw a little blurb that he was speaking in Claremont, and I couldn't wait to see him."

During the trip, the American children will visit Russian schools, go to a reception for cosmonauts, visit a famous Russian artist, and even see John Denver one night.

Upland adult business ordinance read

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Despite pleas from the public to further restrict X-rated entertainment in Upland, the City Council passed the first reading of its adult business ordinance last week.

The new law would restrict adult businesses to highway and airport commercial zones and airport and light industrial zones. In addition, they must be 1,000 feet away from homes, churches and schools.

The city's only X-rated business, T&A Video at 2121 W. Foothill Blvd, is located in a highway commercial zone. City Attorney Don Maroney determined that the store is 1,000 feet away from all schools, as defined by the new ordinance.

The store rents videotapes, sells magazines and other adult paraphernalia and has booths on the premises for viewing videos.

Owner Waldon Randall Welty made a brief and first-time appearance before the council protesting the fact that he was not notified of the original hearing of the ordinance before the Planning Commission. He immediately left the building.

A visibly miffed Mayor Richard Anderson made note of the owner's exit for the record.

City officials later said notification of Welty was not required by law.

Several residents and employees of businesses near the video store showed up to object to the new ordinance. Protesters ranged from a pastor to a high school student attending the meeting for a class.

Upset that it would not outlaw T&A Video, they asked that the law be narrowed to allow the businesses only in industrial zones.

After the people spoke, Richard Fortune — president of Citizens Against Pornography, a group formed specifically to fight T&A Video — asked the council to delay passing the law and to add an amendment further restricting the location of adult businesses.

Fortune is also executive director of the John Robert Powers Career College, a modeling and finishing school in the upstairs suite of the building at 2133 W. Foothill Blvd, next door to the video store.

Fortune's business rents the space from building owner Bob Hockett, a member of CAP who owns a pool supply store on the floor below.

Speakers also claimed that the presence of the store could hurt the school's young patrons.

"These children and adolescents were here before the pornographers," said Marsha Marcotte, an employee of pool supply store.

"This is one of the main entrances to Upland and you want people to see this? Who knows what goes on in there? They go watch these little movies and they come out all excited. The children are prime targets," she said.

But Maroney said he made the law as narrow as could be allowed by state and federal court decisions. If he only included industrial zones, there might not be room enough for the adult businesses, which the city is required to permit.

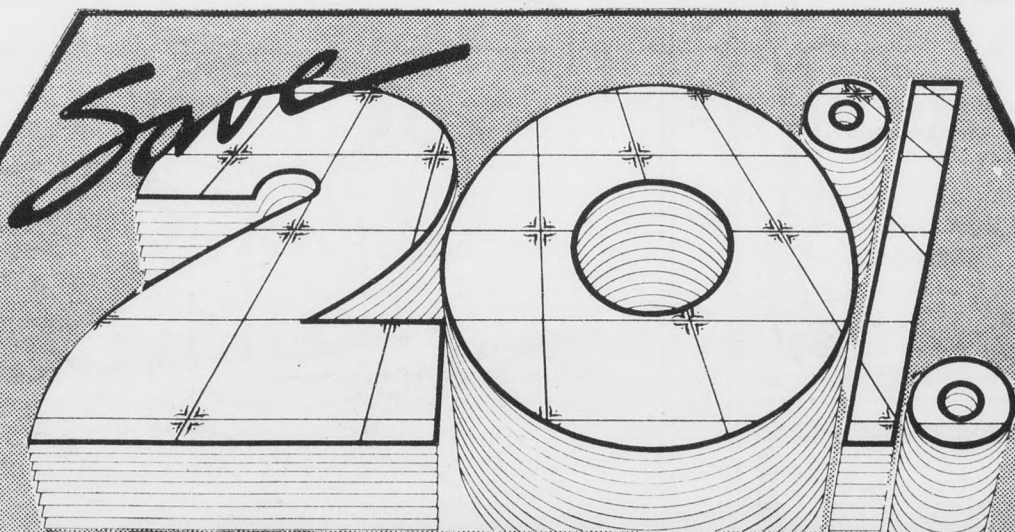

"It's just one of those things. We know nobody wants it in their back yard," Maroney acknowledged, adding later "Trying to put it in the bottom of a gravel pit is not what the courts will let us do."

Maroney also said that Fortune's modeling school could not be counted as a school under the ordinance because it isn't a full curriculum school with a permanent location.

"If you named every child-oriented business that has rented an upstairs room as a sensitive business you would not have any place to put the adult business," Maroney said, adding that the courts would knock his law down.

Serious vandalism problem at ALHS

By Matt Coker

Vandals are wreaking havoc in Alta Loma High School's parking lot, and it's getting downright serious.

One student, who was later suspended, placed a live shotgun shell in the tailpipe of a teacher's car.

Mischief-makers have also sliced tires, broken antennas and left cars for something akin to victims of a demolition derby.

"This is a personal expense to the teachers," Principal Ray Rayburn said of the vandalism. "It affects their insurance and so on."

It is also affecting their blood pressure, and angry staff members say they aren't going to take it anymore.

"This is something which will be taken care of. I will make sure of it," said business education teacher Ray Bonser, who recently conducted a startling survey on vandalism to instructors' cars.

Based on 65 questionnaires Bonser received back from 128 he sent teachers, he learned there were 21 incidents of malicious damage to staff members' cars between 1982 and 1985, causing more than $6,000 worth of destruction.

But since the beginning of the current school year, there have already been 23 acts of vandalism to the cars, creating $4,984 worth of damage in 18 of those incidents. (Information on the remaining five was unavailable).

Bonser, who moved to ALHS last year after having taught at Chaffey High School for more than 20 years, "got on a high horse" over the misbehavior after an "astute reception" to his

R.C. Emblem Club installs new officers

Rancho Cucamonga Emblem Club No. 520 installed new officers recently at the Elks Lodge.

Dottie Cameron, past supreme president and Venita Burger installed the officers.

Officers are Emily Steiner, president; Candy Kopchak, junior past president; Dori Pope, first vice president; Ione Hoxsey, financial secretary; Merriellen Kersey, treasurer; Joyce Craig, recording secretary; Karen Emery, first trustee; Lois Pry, second trustee; Margaret Griego, third trustee; Frances Land, first assistant marshal; Candy Kopchak, second assistant marshal; Hertha Malone, chaplain; Kate Swigart, press correspondent/historian; Freta Munson, first guard; and Kathy Sylvester, second guard.

"My car was keyed," said Bonser.

"Keying," which is the practice of taking a key or sharp object and scraping paint off the side of a car while walking by, has turned out to be the most often reported form of vandalism to teachers' cars, he said.

"One car got it four times in the last two weeks," he said.

The teacher parking lot on the east side of the campus is easily preyed upon because several hundred students pass through it before reaching a gate which leads to neighborhoods immediately east of the school, said Rayburn, the principal.

If that gate was locked, as some teachers have suggested, it would force students to walk further along busy Base Line Road, which already presents enough safety problems without huddling more people there, he said.

And the situation will not get better in the immediate future.

The area east of ALHS is experiencing dramatic growth, Rayburn noted.

Some teachers have also urged school officials to prohibit students from parking in the east lot, but that presents another problem.

The west lot does not fulfill the student parking needs, and spaces which were provided across Base Line at what was then Vineyard Park have been closed off due to development there, Rayburn said.

Parking on Base Line, a highway, would be dangerous if it were allowed, and using the lot at the shopping center next door to the school is frowned upon, he said.

If every staff member parked a car in the east ALHS lot, it would still leave about 40 empty spaces. Faced with the student parking dilemma, Rayburn sees no choice but letting pupils park there.

Rayburn thought he might have had the closest thing to a solution earlier in the year when he proposed erecting a fence to cordon off all but forty spaces in the east lot for staff-only parking.

The area could be fenced in such a way that the gate could remain open and students could still park in the overflow spaces.

Students within the fenced area would be easily identifiable, so if vandalism did occur they could be held accountable.

But Rayburn's idea was nixed because district officials at the time did not consider the problem a high priority, he said.

Now that Bonser has increased staff awareness of the problem, "that certainly moved the project up on the priority list," Rayburn said.

The district is in the process of putting the fencing work out to bid. Rayburn is hoping the fence will be up before school ends in June.

If that does not halt the vandalism outbreak, locking the access gate and closing the east lot to students may be the only answer, he said.

Prominent valley historian marks her 80th birthday

By Suzanne Sproul

Bea Riggs has spent years preserving information about West Valley history.

She's helped collect and record little known facts about the valley and interesting tidbits about former residents.

In between, she has made a little history herself. She received an honorary life membership from the California Association of Realtors in 1985 and was the first woman to be named the All American Woman by the Ontario, Upland and Chino boards of Realtors.

Riggs was the first woman to receive the award for Americanism and Patriotism from the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

And the number of awards and certificates she has received from local groups and organizations literally fills a book.

Now members of the communities she has worked so hard to serve for the past few decades are coming out to show their appreciation.

Family, friends and history lovers gathered recently to attend Riggs' 80th birthday party.

A scrapbook noting all of Riggs' accomplishments were displayed at the reception during the open house.

The party was hosted by Riggs' family.

"My daughters and grandchildren have been planning this. I don't know too much about it. I'm just going," she said with a chuckle.

"When my grandchildren were younger they always used to tell me, 'Grandma you never have a party.' I told them no one ever gave me a party and they said they would when I was 80. Then it seemed like a long way away."

Riggs, who has retired from three different jobs during her working years, spends most of her time now operating the Chaffy Communities Cultural Center Museum in Upland.

"I moved here in 1947. I was born in Los Angeles, and when we moved here it was the first time I'd ever been on a grove," she said.

When Riggs first came to the valley, citrus groves and grape vineyards dotted the scenery where houses and commercial and industrial developments stand now.

"There weren't any sidewalks, curbs or even streetlights except on the corners. I thought, 'Where am I living?' but I grew to love it."

Riggs said Upland and surrounding communities have changed during the years.

"Back then you knew everyone. When we used to go downtown (Upland) on Saturday night to the ice cream parlor, we'd meet people and we knew everyone," she said.

The area and many of the faces have changed since Riggs moved to Upland, but she's been determined to try and save some of the history and stories she remembers.

"I'm not one to sit idle. I've always had to be doing something," she said with a smile.

Upland High students push for world peace

By Kimberly Heinrichs

While most high school students are thinking about proms and basketball tryouts, a group of them at Upland High are pondering world peace.

David Whedbee and Scott Parker, both seniors, started Students For Social Responsibility about a month ago to get the "unaware" students at the high school involved in discussions about conflict in places like Libya, Nicaragua and South Africa.

"I think you can have deeper concerns," Whedbee said, admitting his fellow students often are caught up in more personal concerns. "I think most people are more concerned with the superficial things, which isn't bad. It's just that we need depth (also)."

However, despite intense word-of-mouth recruiting tactics, they've only found about 15 interested students. A similar group in Claremont is thriving, Whedbee and Parker said.

While Whedbee said that the lack of interest on the part of Upland teen-agers may stem from a lack of readiness, Parker said they ignore events outside their own immediate world because they don't want obligations.

"In high school it's your last chance to not have responsibility. So you don't want to throw

College jobs policy ends 10-day notices

By Marianne Aiken

Chaffey College officials will now be able to look for job applicants without advertising available positions inside the college first.

The controversial new "upward mobility" policy approved by the governing board last Thursday eliminates a 10-day internal notice period before jobs are advertised outside the college.

The policy applies to positions not filled by unionized employees.

Trustee William Bescoby voted against the policy, saying that the "tone" of the policy appears to oppose promotion from within the ranks of college employees.

"That's what gives me the heartburn," Bescoby said.

Other trustees said they felt that promotion from within would continue, even with the new policy.

"I've always been supportive of upward mobility from within," said trustee Paul Treadway, "and I would continue to support that, even with that policy."

"Basically, it enlarges the pool from which the selection could be made," said trustee Robert Edmonson.

Dixon Wolf, president of the Chaffey College chapter of the California School Employees Association (CSEA), said at the last board meeting that the policy change could be interpreted as an insult to employees, but said nothing before the vote Thursday.

On April 11, Wolf sent a letter objecting to the change to school policy-makers, stating the district would save money by leaving the policy intact, because for each in-house applicant, the $1,048 cost of advertising is greatly reduced.

Wolf's letter also claimed the existing policy has resulted in more than 60 positions being filled by in-house applicants, saving the district $62,880.

Interim superintendent/president Otto Roemmich defended the policy when it was introduced April 3, saying college employees "should not be afraid to compete with the outside world."

"If the best person is in-house and is superior, they will get the job. If they compete favorably with the people outside, they will get the job," Roemmich said. "If not, someone outside will be selected."

Principal has tight rein on student dress

By Kimberly Heinrichs

"Sex Wax" T-shirts, dyed hair and shorts won't last a day at Upland Junior High School. Along with the students wearing them, they'll be sent home.

"If in doubt, don't wear it," is Principal Robert Nolan's motto when it comes to his school's strict dress code.

Nolan, who has been administering the school and its dress code for the last 21 years, believes that a firm hand never goes out of style.

"If you have a dress code, you have good student behavior. We're not here to put on a style show, we're here to teach," Nolan said.

"Kids of this age accept discipline," he added. "They need to know how far they can go and they need to have someone to say, 'You've gone as far as you can go. Now stop there.'"

The dress code is part of an overall philosophy of discipline that Nolan believes lets his students know he cares. He said it is the "bad ones" who come back to see him years later.

"They say, 'You know, you really cared,'" he said, adding with a laugh that they also say, "We'll never forget you because you were one mean dude."

Some of the pet peeves of the "mean dude" are dyed hair, punk haircuts and heavy metal paraphernalia. On a shelf behind his desk, Nolan keeps seven earrings he has confiscated from boys, four spiked wrist bands — or "dog collars" as he calls them — and an Oriental throwing star, a martial arts weapon that he is safekeeping until the school year's end.

The school has been lenient with T-shirts bearing the faces, names and slogans of heavy metal rock musicians this year, he said, except for the ones with obscenities on them. But Nolan promised to crack down next year.

"Let's face it, a lot of those heavy metal musicians are devil worshippers," he said.

The principal said the dress code is popular with the overwhelming majority of parents. He got one complaint letter this year, he said, protesting the ban on girls wearing their shirttails out, because it was fashionable. After some investigation, Nolan lifted the restriction.

"I went to the department stores and looked at the mannequins," he said, explaining that many parents had already invested money in their daughters' back-to-school wardrobes. "The stores are pushing this stuff. I'm a parent. I know what's out there."

But the amendment does not apply to boys.

"I'm still death on boys with their shirttails out. If I have to keep mine in, they do," he said, laughing. "With girls it's fashion, but with boys it's just plain sloppy."

Nolan has seen fads come and go during his two decades at the school, from ducktails to mini-skirts to mohawk haircuts. He has come to the conclusion that although they may change from year to year, young people will always have their trendy styles.

"Kids this age are copy cats. I betcha if I were to wear an earring on my toe, 700 kids would wear earrings on their toes."

Other schools have expressed interest in the junior high school's dress code, and have written from as far away as San Jose for copies of it, he said.

The students also seem to appreciate Nolan's tough, yet flexible hand.

Coming from a more lenient school in Ontario, student body

Tom Tondée

Jennifer Carrington, left, wears once-forbidden rolled-up pants, while Andrea Morris sports a recently-allowed untucked shirt. Both like the Upland Junior High School's dress code, although they wish they didn't have to wear socks or nylons.

president Andrea Morris said she didn't mind having a stricter code in the eighth grade. "You don't come to school to dress how you want, you come to school to learn," she said.

McGilloway appointed to planning post

Thomas McGilloway, the Upland council candidate who lost a seat by 16 votes earlier this month, was appointed to fill one of two vacancies on the Planning Commission last week.

McGilloway will fill the position left open by former commissioner Hank Houston, who resigned in December after moving to Ontario.

A second commission position just vacated by newly-elected Councilwoman Rosalie Kamansky remains open.

McGilloway, a management consultant, said he considered applying for a commission seat before he ran for council and kept it at the back of his mind during his candidacy. He put in his application the day after he narrowly lost a council seat to Al Canestro, he said.

He said that this "is not a Miss Congeniality situation" with the commission being second best to the council.

"It still gives you a chance to contribute," he said, adding that the commission makes many crucial behind-the-scenes decisions.

He would not say whether he will run in the next council election two years from now. But he did say the commission seat "would be a valuable credential if the opportunity presents itself to run for council again."

Police and city finally come to terms

By Kimberly Heinrichs

After close to six months of negotiation, Upland police have signed contract agreements.

Negotiations between the city and the police were plagued with complications since they began last November. City Personnel Director Mary Ann Reiss said the terms were worked out more than a month ago, but language problems stalled the signing of the agreement.

The department's 52 police officers received a 4 percent raise. They will get back pay for the increase until Jan. 1, 1986. In addition, they will receive another 4 percent increase Aug. 1.

Officers will receive $35 a month beginning Aug. 1 for completion of a fluency exam proving they are bilingual.

The five sergeants and four lieutenants that make up the management association received a 3 percent increase in pay, effective last January. They will get a second raise of 5 percent Aug. 1.

The agreement also changes the way the members of the management association are paid for off-duty training. Instead of being paid 5 percent of their monthly salary for the extra hours put in, they will be paid overtime, which is time and a half, Reiss said.

She said that sergeants and lieutenants only spend about two hours a month in off-duty training. The police officers association had their pay converted the same way last year, she said.

The three police captains made verbal agreements with the city earlier this year, Reiss added.

Police representatives signed memorandums of understanding with the city last week after their chief negotiator, attorney Michael Hannon, left for an overseas vacation, Reiss said. Hannon had left instructions for them to do what they wanted to do, she said.

Although the city and the police groups had agreed on terms last month, the contract was held up by police demands that the agreement be comprehensive, itemizing each of the police terms.

A comprehensive memorandum would have required Reiss to add a controversial ordinance passed in 1981 without police agreement that changed payment for education to a one-time bonus rather than a salary increase.

Hannon had said that including those terms in this year's agreement would suggest the police agreed with it. He wanted Reiss to note police objection to the clause in the contract, but she refused.

Eventually the police settled for the agreement that only stated their changed terms.

Earlier this year, Hannon had threatened the city with a lawsuit, charging unfair labor practices. He later dropped the threat.

Deputy engineer quitting after 8 years with city

By Kimberly Heinrichs

After eight years working for the city of Upland, Deputy City Engineer John Wisz resigned.

Wisz, 42, left Wednesday to join the private engineering consultant firm of Willdan Associates in San Bernardino.

As the person next in line under City Engineer Fred Blanchard, Wisz oversaw work on city streets and sewers.

He said some of his reasons for leaving were personal, but added that he also felt the stress of having an understaffed department.

"There should be twice as many inspectors if we want to (complete) the very ambitious capital improvement plan," he said, explaining that he has lost two of his four inspectors during his time with the city.

"Under those conditions we've had to really skimp in each area and concentrate on the very highest of priority. We just put out the brush fires," he said.

Mayor Richard Anderson said that the amount of staff in each department was designed for efficiency and disagreed that it is a problem.

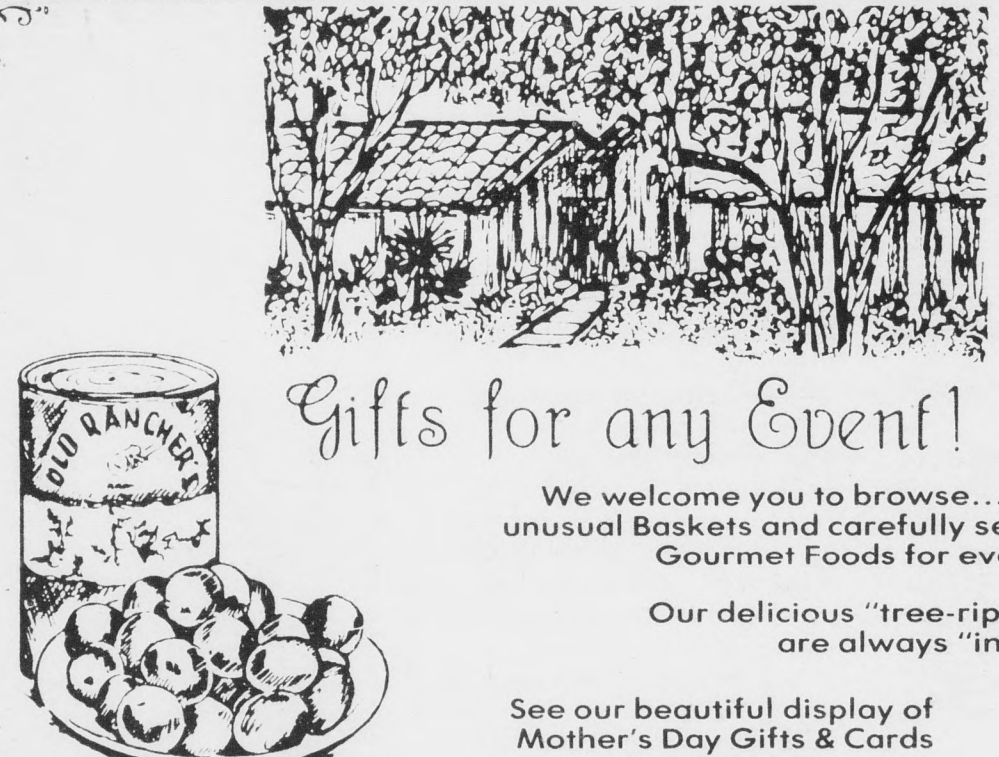

"It was in the best interest of the efficiency of the departments that we make those kind of changes," Anderson said.

However, City Manager Lee Travers said staff size limited promotion possibilities for Wisz.

The deputy city engineer agreed that he has gone as far as he can go in the city.

"I felt that I've done as much as I can here," Wisz said. "I don't see that I can add any to the function of the department unless we get more help or hire a director of public works."

He said he will be heading up city-funded projects at his new job for the recently incorporated city of Moreno Valley in Riverside County.

ALHS students come to defense of teacher

By Marianne Aiken

Alta Loma High School students rallied around Spanish teacher Juan A. Vasquez, who was arrested two weeks ago for investigation of sexual assault.

The walls of school buildings on the Base Line Road campus, and even the so-called senior rock were adorned last week with posters and painted slogans reading, "innocent until proven guilty" and "we want you back by popular demand."

Candy Trourville, an 18-year-old senior, called the charges against Vasquez "a bunch of garbage."

Vasquez allegedly fondled and kissed a female student after forcing her to remain after school one day two years ago. The girl who made the charges is no longer a student at the high school.

Vasquez's arrest a week ago Friday sent a wave of anger and fear around the school that could change the way adults there approach students, said one man.

"Everybody that works here is vulnerable to something like this," said Gene Martinez, a groundskeeper at the school for the past 12 years, and a friend of Vasquez's.

"He'll probably change his attitude toward the kids because of what someone might say about him," Martinez said.

Vasquez remains free on bail, and is on a leave of absence from the school. No formal charges have been filed against him.

Students described Vasquez as a father figure who took the time to listen to people's problems.

They also said he frequently expresses his affection for students with pats on the back and hugs.

"He's just really loving," said Eric Noreen, 15. "It's not like he's touching you in places he shouldn't."

"Now it's like someone turned around and stabbed him in the back," said Jennifer Funtas, 16.

The main reaction on campus seemed to be one of disbelief.

"I don't think it's true, because he's too nice of a person," said Greg Rowney, 16. "He's got a family."

Beth Hendricks, 17, who is a member of the girls' softball team that Vasquez coaches, said he wrote a note to the team before an important game last Tuesday, saying he was sorry he couldn't be there.

"He told us each something special to do," Hendricks said.

As the girls on the softball team ran off to join the game last Thursday afternoon, Martinez stood by the tool shed and shook his head sadly.

"It hurts me to see what's happening," he said. "This could ruin his career."

Race, walk slated May 10

Fifty-four charitable agencies from Fontana to Sierra Madre will benefit from the Human Race, a 10-kilometer run and 20-kilometer walk at Cal Poly Pomona May 10.

The sponsor is the Volunteer Center of the Greater Pomona Valley. May 1 is the deadline for registering before race day. The center expects 800 individual participants.

This is the third year for the event. Last year it raised $41,000 with 620 runners and walkers. This year the expected income is $50,000.

Runners and walkers may sign up by May 1 with any participating agency. Runners may also compete without any affiliation by registering (for $8) at the Volunteer Center, 375 S. Main St., Suite 109, or calling 623-1284.

Long-delayed Chaffey College maintenance projects funded

Chaffey College will be catching up on some maintenance projects that have accumulated during recent slim economic times.

The governing board approved $94,000 in maintenance projects last Thursday, including $60,000 to remove and replace deteriorated stadium bleachers.

The stadium repairs have nothing to do with the college's rejuvenated football program, officials said.

"The move to replace them has nothing to do with football, it has to do with safety," said interim business manager Len Grandy.

Wes Brickley, director of the college's physical plant, said the stadium situation was one of "fix it or lock it."

Brickley estimated that a yearly $80,000-$90,000 maintenance program will be required campus-wide to keep up with repairs.

Other maintenance projects approved by the board include:

- $2,500 to repair a leak in the Vocational Education Building.
- $8,500 to recarpet the library.
- $600 to rework the gymnasium basketball backboards.
- $850 to repair and seal cracks at the handball, basketball, and volleyball courts.

- $6,250 to repair hydraulic bleachers in the gymnasium.
- $675 to soundproof the photocopying room in the Office of Instruction.
- $15,000 to resurface the running track at the stadium.

Kevin Eggleston to run for R.C. council seat

By Marianne Aiken

The first candidate for two seats on the Rancho Cucamonga City Council stepped forward a week ago Monday.

Kevin Eggleston, 34, a member of the Foothill Fire Protection District board since 1983, said he will try to win one of the two council positions currently held by Chuck Buquet and Dick Dahl.

"As far as the council, I decided to run because I feel the two council members (Dahl and Buquet) who are up for re-election have not represented the people," Eggleston said.

"We need someone the people can trust."

Eggleston accused Dahl of waffling on density issues and Buquet of not being prepared for council meetings.

"I've heard Buquet mention several times that he has a huge packet to read and he didn't get to read a particular item," Eggleston said. "If he doesn't want to read all the issues, he should step down."

Eggleston mentioned the general plan as a top priority for the city.

The City Council is currently doing a five-year review of the general plan, focusing on land use and traffic circulation.

"They've dug their feet now a long time on the general plan," Eggleston said.

"I think what has happened is we made a general plan, and it looks great on paper, but when you see 30 units per acre, you say, 'Oh my God!' We don't need drastic revisions of the general plan, it just needs fine-tuning," Eggleston said. "It doesn't seem like anybody's listening."

Thirty dwelling units per acre is the highest density level permitted under the city's general plan.

Eggleston has worked as a battalion chief for the California Department of Forestry in Devore for 15 years. This is his first bid for City Council.

He has lived in Rancho Cucamonga since 1975.

Eggleston said he will be bringing out more campaign issues later.

"I don't want to use all my ammunition now," he said.

Possible merger of fire board prompted candidate's decision

By Marianne Aiken

Kevin Eggleston has more than one reason to run for Rancho Cucamonga City Council.

The possible merger of the Foothill Fire Protection District with the city of Rancho Cucamonga was a factor in Eggleston's decision to run, the candidate said a week ago Monday.

"One of the reasons I'm announcing now is the Foothill Fire District's been talking about creating a subsidiary district," Eggleston said. "It's been kind of a political football."

Eggleston said he would run for council whether the merger takes place or not.

"I imagine that the council is a little worried that if we go for a subsidiary district, one or more of the board might run," Eggleston said.

No one else on the five-member board has as yet expressed interest in running for council.

Merging the fire board with the city would make for more efficient government, Eggleston said, because there are many times when the fire board has to interface with the city on different issues.

"It might be more efficient if the same board made the decision as was making the plans," Eggleston said.

If the merger becomes a reality, the fire board would be dissolved, and the City Council would perform the duties of the fire board, just as the City Council also doubles as the Redevelopment Agency.

"What it would do for the district is lock in funding," Eggleston said. "Now we have to go over to the county each year and negotiate a budget; we have no guarantee."

This is the third time in eight years the idea of merger has been tossed around.

Local Barber Shop Quartet

Keeping America Singing

In these days of heavy metal and punk rock, there is one group in town that goes against the tide of the louder-the-better philosophy of music.

"I can't stand that rock 'n' roll, it's just a lot of noise," is a line from the lyrics of a tune sung by the Country Gentlemen, a barber shop quartet based in the Pomona Valley.

The Country Gentlemen will perform one day this summer in the Concerts in the Park program at Chaffey College, sponsored by the city of Rancho Cucamonga and the Performing Arts of Rancho Cucamonga Council.

Although the schedule for what group plays when has not been announced yet, the concerts will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. starting

July 10 on Thursday nights for eight weeks.

Tom Darby, a Rancho Cucamonga man who acts as president of the quartet and its 56-member chorus, said — not surprisingly — the group's biggest fans are senior citizens.

"They're the ones who really go for our kind of music," agreed Ken Bushman, of Covina, who sings baritone with the quartet.

The full name of the group is the Pomona Valley Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, one of 780 chapters of the largest organized all-male singing fraternity in the world today, with chapters in the U.S., Canada, and overseas.

Members of the chapter travelled to city council meetings in the West Valley in April — including Rancho Cucamonga — to collect plaques recognizing Harmony Month and their goal to "Keep America Singing," the society's motto.

"We sing for anyone, whether we get paid or not," said Harry Sundquist, of Chino, the lead singer.

Although one would guess from hearing the quartet belt out a few tunes that they all have professional voice training, that's not the case, Darby said.

Most of the members said they didn't know a B-flat from a C-note until they joined the group, but since barber shop quartet singing started in 1938, the hobby has attracted an increasingly professional caliber of singer.

"Over the years, we've gotten a lot more professionals," Darby said.

The structure of barber shop quartet music is different than any other kind of music.

"To make barber shop chords fit, you sing differently than the exact note you'd have on the piano," Darby said.

Barbershop harmony is a style of unaccompanied vocal music characterized by four part chords for every melody note.

The voices are tenor, lead, baritone and bass, with the lead singer doing the melody, the tenor harmonizing above the melody, the bass singing the lowest harmonizing notes below the melody, and the baritone completing the chord either above or below the melody.

Barber shop interpretive style allows wide liberties in the treatment of note values — staying within proper musical form — and uses changes in tempo and volume to more effectively create a mood and tell a story artistically, according to a fact sheet distributed by the society.

The music was originally written for anybody who could sing, and singers depended on their ears to produce the harmony. Barber shop quartet singing was known as "woodshedding" in an earlier phase of its evolution, and was standard fare at vaudeville shows.

"Then they started to get more talented people involved," said bass singer Roland Richards, of Upland.

"It's now more refined than when it first started."

A man named Owen Clifton Cash, a deceased Tulsa, Okla. attorney, is credited with saving barber shop quartet singing from extinction by founding the society.

There are now some women in the previously all-male society, and the only qualification for joining a quartet is "to enjoy singing for the entertainment of others," Darby said.

For more information about the group, contact Darby at 946-6770 or 987-3958. □

Opposite page: "The Country Gentlemen" barber shop quartet started in 1952. The idea for their name came from the fact that the only uniform they could afford at first was a pair of overalls. "We're still country, and we're still gentlemen," said president Tom Darby said. Pictured clockwise from the top left : Darby, bass singer Roland Richards, lead singer Harry Sundquist, baritone Ken Bushman, and tenor Dick Parkhurst. Although the faces on the quartet have changed many times throughout the years, Darby and this particular group have a combined 95 years experience in barber shop quartet singing.

Good looks, safety urged for revitalizing downtown Upland

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Good looks and safety may go hand in hand to revitalize the Upland Town Center if the Economic Development Corporation has its way.

The EDC is developing a plan using some of the $50,000 lent by the city to start a revolving loan fund. The fund will provide low-interest loans to help owners of some of the older buildings to make them earthquake-resistant.

At the same time, the EDC is hoping the owners will take advantage of the loan program to upgrade the looks of their buildings, EDC Chairman Doug See DOWNTOWN/Page 19

Marr said.

"Some of the buildings are in pretty good shape, some of them are kind of ratty-looking," Marr, said on a recent walk through the downtown area.

He headed a committee which has been meeting since last fall to discuss improvements to the four-block area surrounded by A and C streets and First and Third avenues. The committee recently incorporated as a non-profit organization.

Although some shoppers have told him the town center is quaint, others have told him it's an eyesore, he said. The corporation is determined to bring back lost shoppers and to interest new residents who may not even be aware that the downtown area exists, Marr said.

One of their objectives is increased visibility. Marr said signs using the kiosk, which sits in the middle of the center, as an identifying symbol will be put up by the San Bernadino Freeway, on Euclid Avenue and on Arrow Highway.

But getting the area in shape is the most expensive concern. Many of the buildings in the downtown area were built close to the turn of the century, Marr said. In addition to normal decay, the property owners face a concern peculiar to California — earthquakes.

A bill that is in committee in the state legislature would require buildings constructed before 1933 to be remodeled with reinforcement measures, said Charles Pilcher, vice president of R&R Clayton Consultants, Inc. The firm was hired in November with $6,000 of city funds to help plan the revitalization.

"A lot of the buildings you can tell with the brickwork probably do not have the reinforcement that would be required if the law were passed," Marr said.

He remodeled his own building, which stands on the corner of C Street and Second Avenue, a few years ago. He put a new roof on the 70-year-old building, with metal strapping for reinforcement.

But his building is unusual for the area, he said, and concern is growing over buildings that are "a little shaky" after the damage left in the wake of last year's earthquake in Mexico City, he said.

So the EDC will take about $20,000 of the money loaned by the city from its federal Community Development Block Grant funds and inspect and catalogue buildings in the four-block area and businesses in its sphere of influence. That sphere extends a few blocks out in all directions, including some businesses on the west side of Euclid Avenue, he said.

The rest of the money — about $30,000 — will be used to by certificates of deposit, Pilcher said. Those certificates will be used as collateral with a lending institution, which will make the actual loans at a reduced rate of interest, he said.

If the law is passed, the city would require the businesses to put in earthquake reinforcement without the financial help, Marr said.

"Rather than a threat, it's kind of like a carrot," he said. "It's an incentive for the property owners not to wait until they're threatened to do it."

"We would encourage property owners when doing the seismic renovations, at the same time they'd paint, clean up their buildings and make them more attractive," he said.

Marr said the EDC does not want to make the new facades to the stores follow any particular theme. Instead, he said, the buildings would each keep their individual style.

He noted that the program will be strictly volunteer.

"None of our programs are going to be forced on anyone," he said, adding that he and members of the Clayton firm will hold an open house next month to discuss the propositions with the interested owners of the 149 businesses in the area.

In addition to safety and good looks, the EDC hopes to improve parking as another drawing card to the downtown.

Since the area has on-street parking within the four blocks, people often drive up and down waiting for someone to pull out and leave a space. Customers are often unaware of parking lots behind the buildings or unwilling to park there because of they are out of the way, he said.

During Marr's casual tour, he pointed out that cars filled only one-third of the 75-space lot behind the businesses facing the east side of Second Avenue. However, customers must walk on a dirt path through a vacant lot or go around the block to get to the shops, he said.

To improve this, Marr and his partner will include a walkway through the middle of the office building they are planning for the vacant space on Second Avenue.

On the west side of the street, the EDC hopes to encourage customers to park in the back and use back entrances of stores to walk through to the center. Marr said uniform signs, perhaps will smile faces, will be used to encourage shoppers to use the back entrances of stores without feeling they must shop there.

Lady angler casts line for bigger fish

By Suzanne Sproul

Virginia Daley spent three years casting her fishing lines into the sea, hoping to land her first albacore. Each time she came up dry.

And then finally, after struggling for so long only to be met by disappointment, she caught her first one last summer.

But now the avid, veteran fisherwoman from Ontario is after bigger fish.

"It took me three years to catch my first albacore. But it's the challenge of fishing and the friendships you make that I like best about the club," said Daley, president of the Pomona Valley Lady Anglers Club.

"Everyone in the club has a common interest and we all pull for each other."

Members of the 33-year-old club range in age from 23 to 83 years old. The membership consists of nurses, teachers, dietitians and retired women, all linked by their common love of fishing.

Members can rent or borrow their rods, reels and tackle, but owning one's own equipment is encouraged.

"You don't even have to know how to fish. The fun thing about the club is that we teach each other how to fish and how to fish better," Daley said.

She said each club member learns something new about the sport every time they leave on a trip.

The group tries to charter a fishing boat out of San Diego once a month.

"Every place you fish is different and presents its own challenges," she said.

Other trips from various areas are planned throughout the year. The next trip is scheduled May 4 out of Ports-of-Call in San Pedro.

"The charters are for club members and their guests. Our husbands fish with us, except when their interests take them elsewhere," the Daley said.

She and her husband, Jack, have fished together for the past 40 years. Daley said her biggest challenge is ocean fishing.

"The main hazard is seasickness. You have to cope," she said with a laugh. "But all you really need is a little muscle and determination and you'll catch a fish."

"After you catch the first one, it gets easier but it takes strength," she said.

Is everything placed in one's lap except the fish once you're on the chartered boat? No way, Daley said.

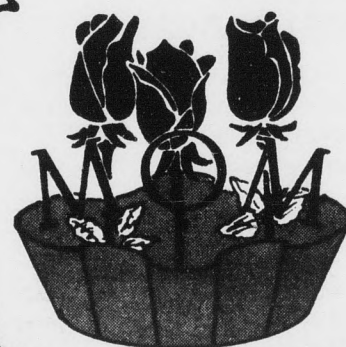

"There isn't a member of the club who will let anyone else touch their line. We're all out to have fun, but we're also after those points," she said.

"Those points" translates into awards for club members. The members meet for camaraderie, but most are determined competitors. They're out to catch more fish and bigger ones than they did the last outing.

The club meets the second Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan building in San Dimas. For more information, call 981-2571 or 984-1961.

The public is invited. The hours of the show are Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from May 4 to 17.

Shoebox art

Carolyn Prince Batchelor of Upland has some of her art work displayed in the Second International Shoebox Sculpture Exhibit at California State University San Bernardino.

The show continues through May 10 at college art gallery. Titled, "Tusk," the work is composed of sticks, muslin, dye and bleach.

Photo contest

The Third Annual Fontana Cultural Week Photography Contest, sponsored by the Fontana Cultural Arts program, is planned May 7.

The contest will be at the new Fontana Cultural Arts Center, 9460 Sierra Ave.

The competition is open to both amateur and professional photographers. Both black and white and color photos will be accepted.

Entry forms and fees should be mailed to Pat Wolff at P.O. Box 483, Fontana, 92335. Entry forms are available at the Fontana YWCA and the Fontana Parks and Recreation Department. For more information, call 822-6502.

Demonstration set

Milford Zornes will demonstrate his art in the Thatcher music building, Pomona College, Fourth Street and College Avenue, Claremont.

The demonstration is planned May 6 at 2 p.m. For more information, call 622-9967.

Want good comedy? Don't see 'Wise Guys'

By BILL HAGEN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Director Brian De Palma isn't exactly renowned for chuckle-a-minute movies, but it really isn't shocking that he should take on a comedy, as he apparently has done with "Wise Guys."

I mean, he's done comedy before, or have you somehow forgotten "Get to Know Your Rabbit"? And then there also was "Scarface," but that probably doesn't count because it was strictly unintentional comedy.

And now comes "Wise Guys," which proves some things, one of them being that De Palma is to comedy what a cold sore is to romance.

And then there's the unquestioned supposition that all professional wrestlers have to be good actors. It's the nature of their business. In "Wise Guys" a bulk named Captain Lou Albano, identified as a former champion, body slams that theory into submission. He's laughably awful, which in a way is all right since it's the only laughable aspect of the movie.

The screenplay by George Gallo, which belies the maxim that inside everyone there is a good story waiting to be told, revolves around a couple of dolts named Harry (Danny DeVito) and Moe (Joe Piscopo), next-door neighbors and longtime friends with a vision of one day opening in Newark, N.J., an Italo-Judeo restaurant-deli.

Until they can, they work as flunkies for a high-powered gangster, entrusted with such duties as starting his car in the morning in case a competitor has wired a bomb to it.

They're also entrusted with

placing large wagers for the boss at a racetrack. On one such mission, Harry, noting that the boss's track record, so to speak, has of late been rather abysmal, persuades Moe to bet the $10,000 on a different horse. Harry and Moe will keep the winnings and open their own establishment.

Who could ever guess what happens? To end the suspense, the boss's horse wins, which means he has $250,000 due him. Some mess for the guys, eh? It gets even messier but not a jot funnier.

The boss, sport that he is, decides to test the friendship and loyalty of Harry and Moe. He gives each a contract on the other, each being unaware of the arrangement, and if one of the contracts isn't fulfilled, both will be killed. Now it's up to Harry and Moe to outwit the boss and his henchmen. Out-half-wit them, anyhow.

Harry and Moe flee all the way to Atlantic City, the one place, of course, where the boss would never think of looking for them and a city in which he obviously has no contacts.

There they explain their plight to a friendly casino operator — aren't they all? — who agrees to help them out. Oh, meanwhile they're financing their Atlantic City spree with the hulk's credit card, and you can imagine how that adds to the hilarity, especially when the hulk finds out about it. He's so upset he can't even enjoy the bed of lobsters he's devouring.

The first problem with "Wise Guys" is that there's nothing rib-ticklingly funny about the basic premise of the story, not even as dark humor. The second is that De Palma never knows when to pull back. He apparently has no awareness of when something isn't working, which is most of the time.

"Wise Guys" brings to mind the days when Frank Sinatra and his pack were cranking out movies primarily designed to keep each of them working and to please themselves.

"Wise Guys" does serve, however, to get in a lot of ethnic references and a lot of plugs for Resorts International.

DeVito and Piscopo spend most of their time yelling at and insulting each other, as if the script weren't insult enough. Albano spends most of his time grunting and inhaling food, or vice versa. Harvey Keitel, Ray Sharkey and Dan Hedaya mostly try to be sinister. The saddest waste is Patti LuPone, who has a brief role as DeVito's wife. LuPone was the original "Evita," for which she won some prestigious awards.

"Wise Guys" is not only an incredibly unfunny comedy, it also even manages to make Newark seem unpleasant.

(The movie, "Wise Guys," rated R).

For a real treat try one of Country Pride's "BETTER MEAL DEALS".

any unnecessary responsibility on yourself," he explained.

The group's purpose is "to see if we can fill them in a bit, not just what they hear from their parents," Whedbee said. He said he is fighting an uphill battle because many conservative families in Upland are not open to the peace cause, usually considered the province of liberals.

One sophomore girl told Parker she couldn't join because her father would rather she was a punk than a Democrat, he said.

Whedbee and Parker decided to form the group after attending meetings of a group called "Beyond War," which advocates peace and environmental causes, Whedbee said.

Whedbee was introduced to the group by his stepfather, he said. But his interest in peace goes back to when he was 13-years-old. He wrote an essay on "the desperate need for disarmament," he recalled.

During his sophomore year he moved to West Germany for a year with his father, a Pomona College religion professor on sabbatical. His experience there confirmed his concerns, he said. "I began to see everything from a different point of view," he said. "I began to see very many hypocrasies that Americans and America has."

Parker, who describes his parents as conservative, said he first realized the need to re-evaluate his own lack of involvement in social causes when he began reading newspapers last year.

"With that, I just gained more knowledge with some of the nuclear arms insanity going on," he said. "I started worrying about whether I was going to be alive."

When using clamps, experienced woodworkers know that scrap woodclamp pads are valuable because they protect the work piece. What becomes difficult though, is trying to adjust the clamps while holding it and the clamp pads in place. You need three hands to do the job. To make things easier, use double faced carpet tape to stick a scrap wood pad to each clamp jaw. The tape holds them securely, even when clamping pressure is applied.

If you need to cut foam rubber try your wife's electric knife. An electric knife cuts foam rubber like a piece of cake.

Keep a length of cotton clothes line handy for those touch-up staining jobs. Dip the end into the stain and use it like a small brush. When finished just cut off the end and you've got a new brush.

Guys asked why their ears are pierced

By Cynthia Hunter

Some find them ear-resistable. "Girls like them on guys," said Marko Babic, a 19-year-old sophomore at Claremont McKenna College. "They think it's cute; they think it's cool." "Women think it's sexier," said 35-year-old Mike Lozoya, an 8-year pierced-ear veteran.

But when men were asked why they pierced their ears, most seemed baffled at first.

"At the time, my girlfriend talked me into it," said Lozoya, a West Covina resident. "I said why not instead of why."

"I never had anyone ask me why — except my parents," said Chris Stenmo, 22.

A video engineer, Stenmo pierced his ear back in 1979 when he was in a punk rock band. "Back then it was a weird trip," the La Verne resident said, then added "Now it's trendy."

As a result, Stenmo no longer has a pierced ear.

A guy with an earring doesn't phase people as he would have five or six years ago, Stenmo continued, noting GQ, a men's fashion magazine, models often wear earrings now.

A lot of conservative men also wear them he said, adding, before "I got a lot of flack for — 'it's faggish', 'you're a punk' (they said) — and (then) gradually everyone was doing it."

"It's a good question" responded 27-year-old David Chapman when asked why.

"Let's see," he paused, then said "I like jewelry." He hopes eventually to add two more holes to his left ear, making a string of four earrings.

Chapman, who has had a pierced ear since seventh grade, said then it was still a novelty. "(The) only people with earrings were bikers."

Now an electrician, Chapman said he is currently a "prospect," or trainee, for the Hell's Angels.

Babic, who has worn an earring since last May, was more assured of his reasons why.

"I think I was drunk or something — I just did it."

Although men said ear piercing has become more of a trend, most said they felt it still set them apart.

"It's just something different about myself," Babic said, who noted he only likes small posts rather than "gawdy," dangling earrings.

"It's just a statement — 'I'm different than you are' — to get attention," Stenmo said. But, he added, "I'm going to be getting married so I don't have time to do it anymore."

Some jewelers often receive unusual earring requests.

Doug Morris of Elite Jewellery at the Vault, in Upland, said an American flag had once been ordered. But most common are diamonds and initialed earrings.

Other jewelers said gold posts were also very popular.

"It's just a fad," Morris said of the ear piercing.

One out of 50 to 75 ear-pierce patrons are male, said Mark Anaya, owner of Jeweler's Design in Upland.

Teen-agers accompanied by parents and men in their young 20s account for the largest number of patrons, said Dorothy Bennett, manager at Cooper's Jewellery and Handbag in the Montclair Plaza. Occasionally an older man in his 30s or 40s will venture in, she said.

Men usually request a left, rather than right, ear pierced, she said. Traditionally, homosexual men wore earrings in the right ear, the men interviewed said. While many say the distinction is less rigid today, some still acknowledge its presence.

When it comes to piercing, "Most like the left, they're straight," Bennett said. "Many are emphatic about it."

Stenmo, who said he used to think it (a right ear pierce) was homosexual, now said it was less evident.

A hairdresser, Loyosa said to avoid "strange looks," it's important to have his left ear pierced. "I don't want them (patrons) to think I'm gay."

For Babic, the issue is not right or left, but if.

Preparing for summer job interviews, he said earrings can present the wrong impression. "One might be OK, two would never be," he said. However, he feels some jobs don't even permit one, "work in a restaurant, OK — but not in a bank."

Despite the trend, most men will probably not have earrings.

When You're Not Sure if it's Minor or Serious, You Want Secure Care.

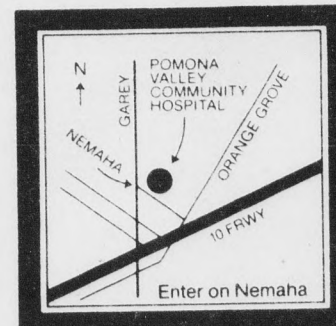

You're not a medical expert, so you're not always sure how serious an illness or accident may be.

That's why Pomona Valley Community Hospital developed Secure Care right next to its Emergency Room.

When you arrive at the emergency entrance, a special nurse will determine the severity of the problem. Serious emergencies are directed to the Emergency Room. Less serious problems are directed to Secure Care.

Secure Care has its own staff and separate treatment rooms to provide you with fast, efficient and inexpensive care. Secure Care is available for treating all types of minor illnesses and injuries from cuts and broken fingers to sore throats and flus.

Eagles in badminton playoffs

Etiwanda High School will be well-represented at the CIF badminton tournament beginning Friday at Cal State Dominguez Hills.

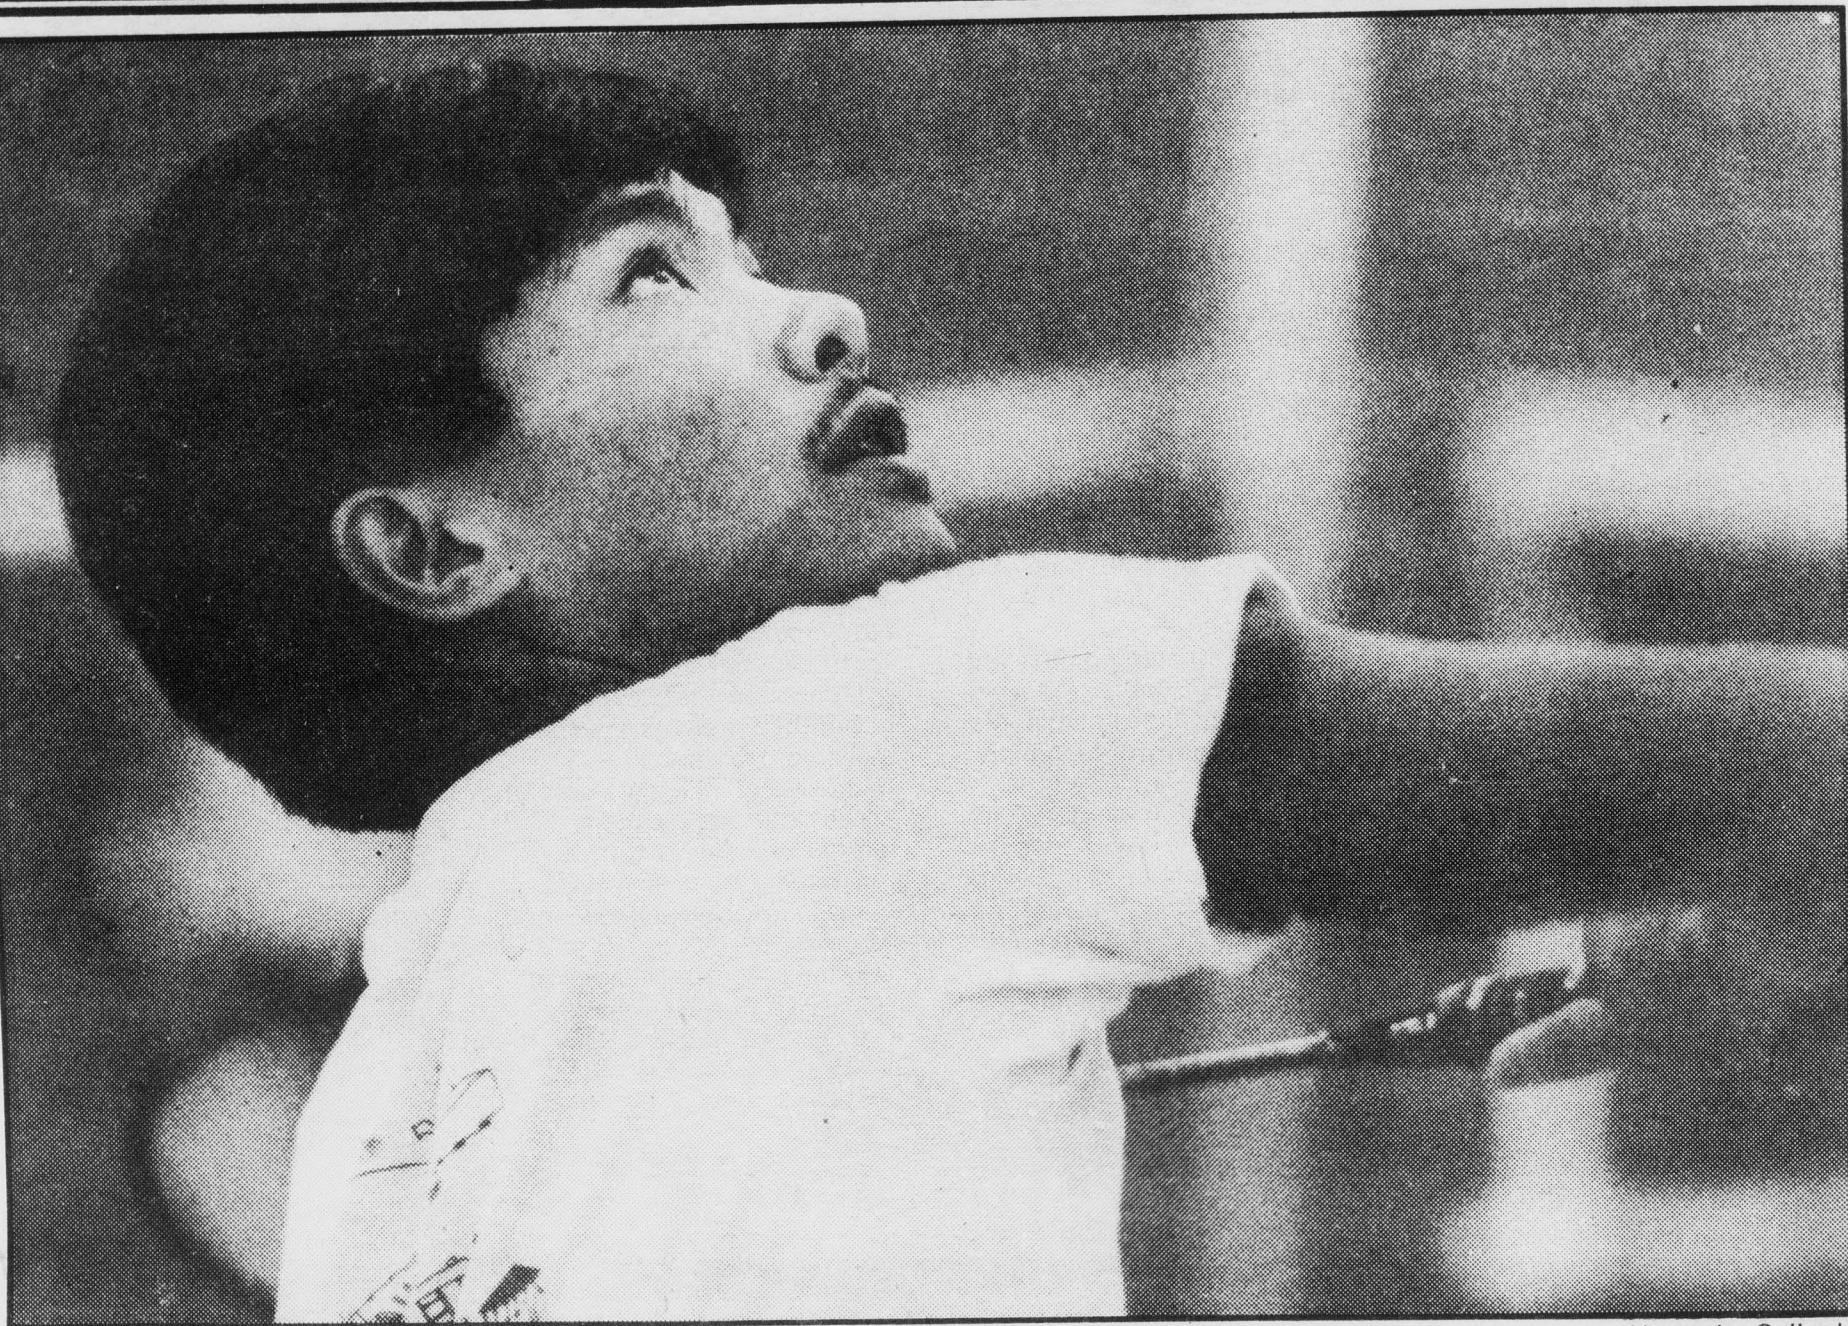

Leading the Eagle entries will be two-time Hacienda League singles champion Macario Padre, who defeated teammate Glen Crosby in the finals at Chino High School last week. Padre will also team with Shelly Cooper in the mixed doubles competition.

"It's been quite an honor for me to have had these players," said Etiwanda head coach Jess Evans. "We took our lumps as freshmen and sophomores, but the experience paid off."

"How many two-time champions do you see in wrestling or track? Not many. That's what makes Macario's feat so unique."

This will be the second trip to the CIF playoffs for Padre and Crosby. Both advanced into the round of 16 a year ago and Evans thinks they'll do better this time out.

"Last year's experience will certainly help," said Evans, who also doubles as

Alexander Gallardo

Etiwanda High School's two-time Hacienda League badminton singles champ Macario Padre in full concentration.

the school's basketball coach. "I think I would be a little disappointed if Macario didn't at least reach the quarterfinals."

Unlike other individual sports, all divisions are lumped together for the Clif finals. The field of 32 entries will play two rounds Friday and finish on Saturday.

"These are the year-round players," Evans said of the competition. "I imagine this is probably the best tournament in the state."

In addition to being a physically demanding sport, badminton also requires mental preparation. "You must have the right mechanics and command of all the shots," Evans said, "but the mental part of the game is knowing when to hit those shots."

"These are all multi-dimensional players."

Alexander Gallardo

Glen Crosby has been second to teammate, twice.

Shelly Cooper teamed with Padre to capture mixed double title in league finals.

Then they told me there was a woman who had done about the same think I had."

The letters and the friendship began then in 1966. "We've shared a lot of joys and sorrows together. I don't feel as if I'm away from home at all," Manifold said during a recent party Burkan and the Alta Loma Newcomers club organized for her.

The party was a "Welcome to America" one for Manifold complete with a couple of koala bear decorations.

Burkan said the two women are quite different.

"We are totally different but so much alike," she said. "I never had a sister and I feel like Gwenth is my sister."

Sitting and talking with someone is a lot different than writing letters, the two women agreed.

"In a letter you have to be quite short, but when you're together you can explain in detail. We haven't stopped talking since Saturday (April 12)," Manifold said.

While Manifold is visiting Alta Loma, Burkan plans trips to such familiar Southern California spots as Disneyland, San Diego and side trips across the border into Mexico and Las Vegas.

Employers urged to hire veterans first week of May

The first week in May is "Hire a Veteran Week" in California.

Gertrude Montoya, manager of the Ontario Employment Development Department (EDD) Job Service office, said during this time EDD offices in the state will focus attention on the special qualities of veterans such as their skills and self-discipline that make them ideal candidates for employment.

"During this week especially, we call upon business, organized labor, veterans organizations and state and local government to lend their support to the drive to make full use of the talents and ambitions of veterans," Montoya said.

For assistance in the Ontario area, call Veterans Employment Representative at 983-5821.

Still, recently elected Councilman Al Canestro insisted something further could be done. He favored returning to restricting adult businesses through conditional use permits.

The city dropped that method after the city of Garden Grove lost a court case to Welty over another store under almost identical restrictions.

"I think the location adjacent to a modeling school is totally inappropriate," he said, to the clapping of some members of the audience.

Anderson reprimanded the public for its interruption and Canestro continued, calling pornography "a cancer that if it's not cut out will continue to grow."

Anderson said the citizens would be better off if the law were passed in its present form than if it were put off and not passed at all.

"To simply puff up our chests to say in hearts we know what's right and wrong and we'll do it anyway (would expose) more citizens to the same insults," he said.

Representatives of the Upland School District and the police department expressed support for the new law.

United Way honors campaign workers

A victory celebration recently was held to honor United Way Inc. campaign volunteers for their successful efforts in the first campaign of the new Mt. Baldy Region.

Harold R. Nelms, campaign chairman, hosted the dinner at Griswold's Candelight Pavilion in Claremont.

Nelms thanked his campaign cabinet for their outstanding job and team work in putting the region over the top at 100.5 percent of goal.

SOCIAL SECURITY

How do I sign up for Medicare?

Copley News Service

Q: I have been receiving reduced retirement benefits since age 62. I will be 65 in August. How do I sign up for Medicare?

A: If you are receiving Social Security retirement benefits, your hospital insurance protection will start automatically at 65 and you will be automatically enrolled for medical insurance — unless you say you don't want it — at the same time you become entitled to hospital insurance.

Q: I would like to know if I will receive part of my recently deceased husband's Social Security. I receive benefits on my own work record and my husband received benefits on his own work record.

A: When an individual is entitled on more than one record, the individual receives whichever is the larger of the two. If the amount to which you

League can give issues' pros, cons

The League of Women Voters of Claremont, as in previous years, can provide speakers prepared to present the pros and cons of ballot measures slated to be voted upon by state voters in the June primary.

On the ballot will be 11 state and two county measures presented for voter approval. One of the most controversial is the so-called "deep pockets" initiative on liability insurance.

Groups wishing to hear a presentation can call the league office at 624-9457.

are entitled as a widow is larger than what you get on your own record, you will receive the larger of the two sums.

Q: I have heard conflicting reports on how much a person can earn and still receive Social Security. I have heard that if you earn over a certain amount you have to pay back a part of the Social Security benefit. I have also heard that you can work, draw retirement and get income from investments and still receive Social Security. Which is correct?

A: You can receive all benefits if your earnings do not exceed the annual exempt amount. The annual exempt amount for 1986 is $7,800 for people 65 or over and $5,760 for people under 65. If your earnings go over the annual exempt amount we withhold $1 for each $2 of earnings above the limit. Earnings include money earned as an employee or self-employed person, however, income from investments or interest income is not considered earnings.

Q: My wife wants to quit work in May of this year but will not be 65 until May 1987. Should she start drawing this year or would it be better for her to wait until she is 65?

A: If your wife elects to receive benefits before age 65 the check is reduced permanently. The amount of reduction depends on the number of months she receives checks before she reaches 65. If she starts her checks early, she will receive about the same value in total benefits over the years.

Questions on Social Security may be sent to Eugene Williams, Social Security Office, P.O. Box 82727, San Diego, CA 92138.

ORDINANCE NO. 1378
ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF UPLAND AMENDING CHAPTER 5 OF THE UPLAND MUNICIPAL CODE PERTAINING TO AMBULANCES AND AMBULANCE SERVICE

The City Council of the City of Upland does hereby ordain as follows:

SECTION 1: Section 6510.1(c) of Chapter 5 of the Upland Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

(c) "Ambulance" means any vehicle licensed by the California Highway Patrol as an ambulance which is designed or intended to be used in providing emergency transportation of wounded, injured, sick, invalid or incapacitated human beings, and shall include any such vehicle which is designed or intended to be used for providing non-emergency transportation of wounded, injured, sick, invalid or incapacitated human beings from any location within the City of Upland.

"Ambulance" as used in this chapter shall not be deemed to include a vehicle specially designed to carry a patient in a wheelchair or supine position, and may render only CPR and first aid service. Said vehicle shall not be equipped or designed to give either medication or oxygen in transit, nor be licensed by the California Highway Patrol as an ambulance.

SECTION 2: Section 6510.8.1 of Chapter 5 of the Upland Municipal Code is hereby added to read as follows:

No business license for ambulance service shall be issued by the City of Upland unless the applicant demonstrates applicant's ability to comply with all standards set forth in Section 6510.8 of this Code, and more particularly demonstrates that one ambulance of the company shall be stationed 24 hours per day within the City.

SECTION 3: Section 6510.8(c) of Chapter 5 of the Upland

Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

(c) At least one ambulance of the licensee shall be permanently stationed in the City of Upland capable of rendering emergency advanced life support and staffed with at least one Mobile Intensive Care Paramedic and responding within the time set forth hereinabove.

SECTION 4: This ordinance shall be signed by the Mayor, attested by the City Clerk, and published in the Upland News in pursuance to the requirements of the California Government Code.

SECTION 5: If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance shall for any reason be invalid, such holding or holdings shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this ordinance. The City Council has declared that it would have passed this ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, be declared invalid.

CONSENT TO TRANSFER
THIS CONSENT of the City of Upland, California ("Grantor"), granted the date set forth under the signature line below,

WHEREAS, Group W Cable, Inc., a New York corporation ("Group W Cable"), operates and maintains a cable television system in the Grantor's community pursuant to that certain franchise, license, permit or other authorization (as amended to the date hereof, the "Franchise") granted by Grantor and evidenced by the document(s) listed on Exhibit A hereto (such cable television system and the Franchise being hereinafter collectively referred to as the "System"); and

WHEREAS, Group W Cable's parent corporation, Westinghouse Broadcasting and Cable, Inc., an Indiana corporation ("Westinghouse"), is selling and/or otherwise transferring all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of Group W Cable to American Television and Communications Corporation, a Delaware corporation ("ATC"); Century Southwest Cable Television, Inc., a Delaware corporation; TCI Holdings, Inc., a Colorado corporation; and affiliates of, or subsidiaries or partnerships owned or controlled by, Comcast Corporation, a Pennsylvania corporation, Daniels & Associates, Inc., a Delaware corporation, Houston Industries Incorporated, a Texas corporation, and ATC (the foregoing entities being hereinafter collectively referred to as the "New Owners"), and thereby transfer control of Group W Cable to the New Owners; and

WHEREAS, the New Owners presently intend to cause Group W Cable to transfer control of and/or transfer and assign the System to Comcast Cablevision of California (the "Transferee"), a partnership, consisting of two wholly-owned subsidiaries of Comcast Corporation, a Pennsylvania corporation, as soon as practicable after the closing date of the foregoing stock sale (the "Closing Date"); and

WHEREAS, Grantor is willing to consent to the transfer of control of and/or the transfer and assignment of the System to the Transferee after the Closing Date;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises, Grantor hereby consents to (i) the transfer and assignment of the System to the wholly-owned subsidiary of Group W Cable (the "GWC Subsidiary") and (ii) the transfer of control of the GWC Subsidiary and/or the transfer and assignment of the System to the Transferee after the Closing Date, provided that the consent set forth in clauses (i) and (ii) above shall be subject to the condition that the holder of the Franchise shall (promptly after the date of such transfer and/or assignment) execute and deliver to Grantor its acceptance of, and its agreement and undertaking to perform all of the duties and obligations under, the Franchise.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, Grantor has executed this consent, effective the Closing Date referenced above.
